NEW OXFORD WINS OPENER

With a galaxy of stars outshining any team playing under the name of New Oxford since the days of "Whitey" Fisher and "Pete" Fleshman, Mgr. Jack Miller on Saturday afternoon on the local diamond opened the season with a 9 to 1 victory over the Midway nine. Shoap, an Arendtsville youngster, with a port side delivery, sent the visitors home with only three hits, two being of the scratch variety. Gruver, of East Berlin, caught a splendid game for N. O. and garnered 4 bingles in addition. "Cooney" Lawrence, McSherrystown, who played 2nd for the home team, also batted out 4 safe ones. Essick, rf, and Brown, ss. came thru with a pair of safeties apiece, while "Hen" Hersh, cf, Whitey Woodward, 3rd b, and Noel, 1st b, also landed in the hit column. Small, lf., and Shoap were the only ones not credited with hits on our side. Brown had N. O.'s only error. R. Small's one-handed stab of a hot liner with the bases loaded with New Oxfordians was the feature of the game. Midway put up a good game but they were simply outclassed, the locals slamming out 15 hits, many for extra bases, to all corners of the lot.

Today's game with Chambersburg B. R. L. nine will put New Oxford to a real test, and altho the locals hardly expect to beat the professionals they hope to give 'em a battle worth while. Shippensburg will play here on Saturday at 2:30 p. m. Mgr. Miller has gone to great trouble and the Association is under heavy expense to provide the brand of ball which many fans have clamored for and it is up to the community to back the team by attending the home games.

With the arrival of Cloyd Miller from Tulsa, Okla., and Plowman and Hollinger, from Hanover, who are now playing with Gettysburg college, Mgr. Miller told the Association at a meeting Monday evening he expects to have the fastest nine in southern Pennsylvania. A first-class pitcher will twirl against Chambersburg today.

The New Oxford band will play at the game today. Local factories will keep holiday.

"Alec" Brashsehars asks everybody to get ready for Tag Day on Memorial Day. Keep the ball rollin'!

It was decided on Monday evening to admit ladies free to the grandstand.

HOME SCHEDULE FOR MAY

May 19—Marietta.
May 26—Robin A. C., York.
May 30—Columbia.
10—Chambersburg B. R. L.
12—Shippensburg.

C. Til. Myers, of near town, has absolutely no good for the W. M. RR. roadbed between Hanover street and his residence since a protruding stone interfered with his homeward progress, one day last week. With two baskets of groceries on his arms and a lot of Anti-Volstead arguments on his mind, "Til" suddenly made a plunge towarw terra firma. In order to regain his balance "Til" took the attitude of "the basket be darned", with the result that four pounds of sugar, two pounds of coffee, a sack of salt, and $1.48 worth of other groceries went to help ballast the track at that particular point. It is said Walt Miller and his section gang had to straighten the rails warped by the change of temperature in "Til's" disposition.

Cloyd Miller is expected to arrive in New Oxford in a few days from Tulsa, Okla., where he has been residing for over a year. He will accompany the body of Hugh Ross, of Woodbine, York county, who died in January, 1922. Mr. Ross' body will be taken in charge at York by a brother-in-law. Young Miller has signed to hold down his old position in left field for New Oxford. His mother and her son, Harold, and two daughters, Eliza and Lydia, are expected to come East in June.

The new garage at the Reformed church parsonage is finished and presents a neat appearance. The extensive improvements to the parsonage add greatly to the beauty of the property. The new cement pavement at St. Paul's Reformed church along Peters street is also finished. The work was done by Jacob Menges. This is a great improvement to the property and the town and also a great convenience to the public. This work is the gift of the Usher's Association to the church.

MISS MARY STOUGH COMMITTED SUICIDE

Returning home from Mt. Hope sanitorium on Tuesday, apparently much improved after having undergone four weeks' treatment in that institution, Miss Mary Stough, of Carlisle street, threw herself into the cistern at the home of her brother, Ed. C. Stough, Qualityville, yesterday morning, sustaining a broken neck and being dead when found about a half hour later.

The deceased until about two months ago was always in a most cheerful mood, but from that time on she became despondent for no known reason, and on several occasions threatened to end her life. About four weeks ago conditions became such that she was taken to Mt. Hope. There she seemed to regain her usual composure, and on Tuesday her brother Ed., his son Carl, and Miss Mary Wolf, a niece, fetched her to New Oxford. On the way home they visited another niece in Manchester and Miss Stough appeared in excellent spirits. Arriving at the home of her brother, the deceased in a cheerful mood ate a hearty breakfast and assisted to prepare a chicken for dinner.

Giving the excuse to Mrs. Stough, who was washing, that she wished to write a note to the matron at Mt. Hope, the deceased went into another room. Shortly afterward the former had occasion to go into the room and saw a slip of paper underneath the lamp. Picking same up, Mrs. Stough was horrified to read, "If you search for me you will find my body in the cistern." Mrs. Stough immediately called Mrs. H. T. Brown, a neighbor, who found the trap door shut and the body in only about one foot of water. The woman's body striking the pump in the cistern caused the upper part of the pump to throw the trap shut.

Miss Mary leaves two brothers, E. C., of Qualityville, and Charles Stough, of Canton, Ohio. She was a daughter of the late Jos. Stough. She was aged 58 years, 9 months and 9 days. Funeral Friday from the Ed. Stough home, services at 10 a. m., conducted by Rev. W. M. Allison of the Lutheran church. Interment in the New Oxford cemetery.

Coroner C. G. Crist, of Gettysburg, examined the body following an examination made by Dr. J. L. Sheetz, of New Oxford, and gave a verdict of suicide by drowning, the neck being broken in the attempt. Dr. Crist deemed an inquest unnecessary. One of Miss Stough's arms was also broken in the fall.

JOHN W. MYERS GRADUATES AS BACHELOR OF DIVINITY

On Thursday, at the 72nd annual commencement exercises of Central Theological Seminary of the Reformed church, located in Dayton Ohio, John W. Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Myers, Hanover street, was one of the seven who graduated and received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. It is not his purpose to enter the active ministry at once, except for supply work for the summer. Next winter he will pursue further graduate work in Religious Education and Sociology at Boston University. The Rev. Myers' graduation thesis was on "The Social Task of the Country Church" and numbered 12000 words. He is now visiting at his home here.

1ST DIST. S. S. CONVENTION AT NEW CHESTER ON SUNDAY

The First District S. S. Assn. will hold its annual convention in St. John's Reformed church, New Chester, May 13th, afternoon and evening. The afternoon session opens at 1:30. The program is as follows: Song Service, led by Mr. Lippy, Gettysburg; Devotional, by Rev. I. S. Ditzler, East Berlin; Open Conference, led by M. E. Knouse, Brysonia, county supt. Zinn, Gettysburg; Address, by Mr. Seabold, of Seminary; Quartette; Address, by Mr. Johnson, of College Y. M. C. A.; Music; Benediction.

P. O. EXAM. ON SATURDAY

Examinations to fill the positions of postmaster of New Oxford, Littlestown and Spring Grove will be held at Gettysburg, Hanover, York, and various other places on Saturday. Each position pays $2,000 salary. Ex-Burgess V. Ralph Miller is said to be the only announced applicant for the New Oxford postmastership, tho of course there is no telling how many may come forward to take the exam. on Saturday. Application forms must be filed to take the examination. Anyone of the highest three eligibles may be selected by the President. Senator Pepper, it is said, is expected to make the recommendations

FIRE COMPANY MEETS FRIDAY

There will be an important meeting of the New Oxford Fire Co. on Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock. Every member is urged to attend as business pertaining to the acquisition of a new fire truck will be discussed. You wouldn't stand back when your help would be needed at a destructive fire, would you? Then why not enter into the spirit of the Fire Company now and assist in preparing to get at a blaze on the jump should one visit the town—which may occur at any minute. Be a Fire Company booster!

The Rev. A. P. Frantz, B. D., pastor of St. Paul's Reformed church, will deliver the Memorial Day address in the New Oxford cemetery. Jos. I. Weaver, chairman of the S. of V. committee, is striving hard to complete plans to make this year's celebration equally as impressive as those of the past, and the community should back Mr. Weaver in every way.

HUSBAND HACKS WIFE TO DEATH

Steeplejack Makes Fatal Attack on Woman After a Jealous Quarrel.

FALLS DEAD IN SNOW

Pompton Lake, N. J.—A posse of 200 men with bloodhounds engaged in a wide hunt for John Manning, forty-six years old, a steeplejack from Philadelphia, suspected by police of stabbing his wife to death. The woman, with knife wounds in her body, was seen to run from her home to the street calling for help, and expired in the snow. The countryside was scoured for the alleged slayer, but no clue was found. The man hunt was resumed when a large group of citizens and farmers joined the police in the search.

Police believe jealousy was the motive for the crime. They revealed that the woman had frequently been seen in the company of a minister, who, they say, left Pompton Lake some time ago, after receiving threatening letters from an alleged anonymous writer.

Jealous of His Wife.

Manning had been jealous of his wife for several years, Police Chief Miller said. About two years ago he was locked up for attacking her, he said, and several times after that neighbors reported the couple quarreled bitterly, but no change on the husband's part was noted.

About 6:15 at night police learned that Manning was seen alighting from a bus and making his way to the home of his wife, who lived with their two children, a boy of eighteen and a daughter, fourteen years old. About 6:35 o'clock Police Chief Miller passed the house and heard quarreling. He thought little of it because of the fact that the couple had been reported quarreling before. A few minutes later Mrs. Manning ran from the house, calling for help. The chief ran in pursuit of her husband, whom he believed to have been the person with whom she quarreled, but soon lost sight of him.

Neither of the children was home at the time of the alleged quarrel, the daughter having gone shopping and the boy to work. Shortly after the killing a general alarm to the police of the adjacent cities and towns was sent out for the arrest of Manning. The couple had been estranged for a few years. Manning was employed in Newark up to a few days ago, it was said.

HIKES 9,000 MILES TO RICHES

Man, Aged 75 Years, on Last Lap of Trip From Miami, Fla., to Albany, N. Y.

Miami, Fla.—William Chapman, seventy-five years old, is on the last lap of his three-year "hike" from Miami, Fla., to Albany, N. Y., to get a fortune. A $5,000 legacy awaits him in Albany.

"I chew, smoke, and take a nip now and then. I am going to live 75 years longer," Chapman said. "Years mean nothing."

Sues Dead Man for Heart Balm.

Elizabethtown, Pa.—Seeking heart balm from the estate of a dead man, Miss Virgie Ream has filed suit for $5,000 damages from Hiram H. Nissely, administrator of the estate of M. Brooks, who died last month. Miss Ream alleges that Brooks courted her for 16 years and at various times set dates for their wedding, only to change them.

Murder Tale Used to Swindle Priests.

New York.—By posing as an army officer and pleading for money to go to Port Oglethorpe, Ga., to confess the "murder of a soldier" there, William McDonough, under arrest here, swindled 50 priests, police say. McDonough was arrested upon complaint of four of his victims, who revealed his trick. He is held in $25,000 bail.

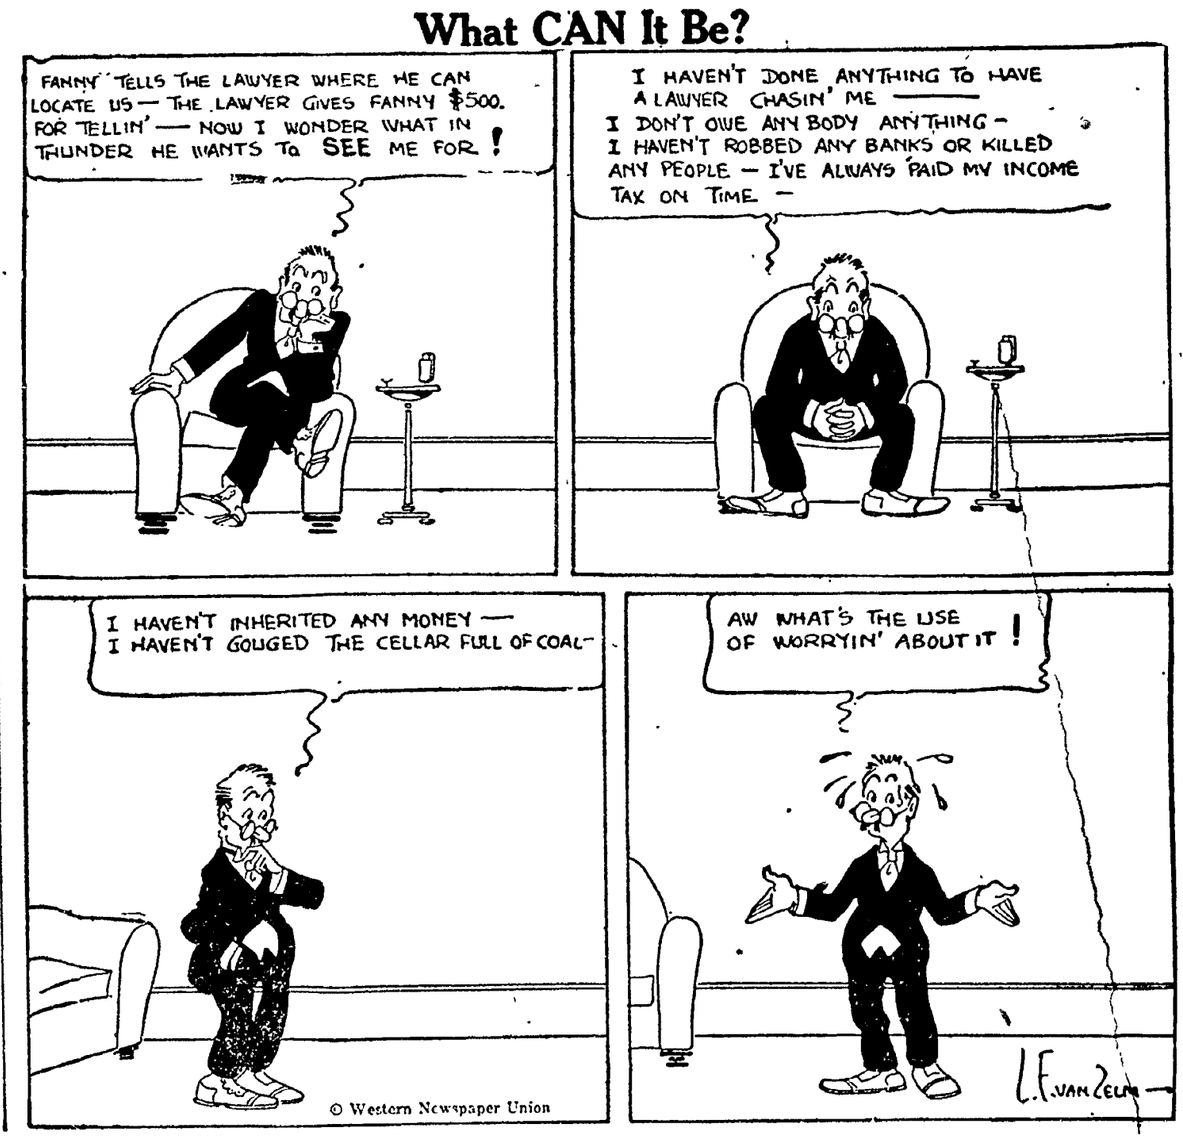
What CAN It Be?



Man Parboiled by Fall Into Vat of Hot Water

Burlington, N. J.—Parboiled in a vat of water in which logs are prepared for veneering, Harvey Snyder, thirty-six years old, was the victim of a probably fatal accident when he plunged head first into the steaming pool.

Fellow employees knew nothing of his plight until they saw him trying to climb out. They rushed to his aid, but physicians, who hurried him to a hospital, said the entire surface of his body was scalded and that there was no hope for his recovery.

He told his rescuers he had stepped down from a derrick and, dazzled by the flash of sunlight on the snow, fell into the steaming vat.

TEXAS SLAYER KILLS TWO MEN IN FAMILY QUARREL

Follows Eloping Wife to Canadian City and Effects Reconciliation.

Paducah, Tex.—John B. Sneed of Fort Worth, Tex., who has killed two men in a family feud, almost added a third to the list when he shot and wounded C. B. Berry of Paducah. Berry, it is said, recently killed Sneed's brother-in-law, Wood Barton.

Both the Sneed and Boyce families were among the wealthiest bankers and ranch owners in Texas. Both were pillars of the community and the church. But in 1911 Mrs. Sneed told her husband that she was in love with A. G. Boyce, Jr., son of Capt. A. G. Boyce, Sneed's neighbor. She begged Sneed to let her go away with Boyce.

The husband's reply was to summon an alienist and send his wife to a sanitarium. She was not there long before she and Boyce eloped. For more than a month Sneed followed their trail, spending thousands of dollars. He finally located them in Winnipeg, Canada.

Here he effected a reconciliation with his wife without seeing Boyce, and returned home. Two weeks later he met Captain Boyce, who was seventy-five years old, in a Fort Worth hotel. He suspected the father of aiding his son's elopement. They had words, and Sneed shot and killed Captain Boyce.

Sneed was tried but the jury disagreed. During his trial he refused to accept bail, preferring jail because of his fear of the Boyce clan.

A few months later Sneed, disguised as a laborer, went to Amarillo, Tex., where young Boyce was living, and shot and killed him. The clans armed again, but Sneed returned to face trial and was again acquitted.

TWO MEN DIE SINGING HYMN

Brothers Are Swept to Death in Icy Waters to Tune of "Nearer My God to Thee."

Mondain, Iowa.—Floating on an ice cake in the Missouri river to certain death, with the banks lined by friends and relatives unable to avert the tragedy, two men, Harvey McIntosh, thirty years old, and his brother, Tom, twenty-six, of this place, chose as their farewell message the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

For hours the two men had been marooned on a sandbar in the river. A sudden rise of the river had swept away their boat while they were hunting ducks. Their cries brought persons to the banks, but all rescue attempts failed owing to a heavy flow of ice.

The brothers perched themselves on a stump as darkness fell and water covered the bar. Huge bonfires were lit by the watchers on the banks. As the crest of the flood came on, the water rose to the men's armpits.

"We have caught an ice cake," they shouted. And then out of the darkness of the river came the strains of the hymn that grew fainter and fainter as the men drifted on to their death.

No traces of the bodies have been found, although searching parties combed the river bottom for miles.

TRIES HIS SECOND GIRL WIFE

Texan, Aged 76, Marries Child of 14, After Divorcing 19-Year-Old Mate.

Forth Worth, Tex.—A few days after he divorced his nineteen-year-old wife, Gladys, B. R. Sprayberry, seventy-six years old, of this city, married fourteen-year-old Pearl Martin.

Sprayberry's first girl wife deserted him after they had been married only a few days. The aged man, a Civil war veteran, divorced her and married Miss Martin.

Fined $5 for Kissing a Horse.

New York.—Found kissing and petting a horse, which he led upon the sidewalk, James Ryan, thirty-five years old, was fined $5 on a charge of disorderly conduct. Ryan told the magistrate that he was a great lover of horses, but he was fined just the same.

Impersonates Devil and Is Slain.

Berlin.—Hans Diebler, a resident of a suburb of Berlin, impersonated the devil to extort money from a widow. He was killed by a neighbor, who fought with an ax when the widow called for help.

She halted suddenly in her dressing, perplexed and troubled. Her father had sent Eaton to the country club with Avery; there Avery, plainly, had forced Eaton into the polo game. By her father's instructions? Clearly there seemed to have been purpose in what had been done, and purpose which had not been confided to herself either by her father or Avery. For how could they have suspected Eaton would betray himself in the game unless they had also suspected that he had played polo before? To suspect that, they must at least have some theory as to who Eaton was. But her father had no such theory; he had been expending unavailingly, so far, every effort to ascertain Eaton's connections. So her thoughts led her only into deeper and greater perplexity, but with them came sudden—and unaccountable — resentment against Avery.

At seven Harriet went in to dinner with her father. The blind man was alone; he had been awaiting her, and they were served at once. All through the dinner she was nervous and moody; for she knew she was going to do something she had never done before: she was going to conceal something from her father. She told of Eaton's reception at the country club, and of his taking part in the polo practice and playing badly; but of her own impression that Eaton knew the game and her present conviction that Donald Avery had seen even more than that, she said nothing. She watched her father's face, but she could see there no consciousness that she was omitting anything in her account.

An hour later, when after reading aloud to him for a time, he dismissed her, she hesitated before going.

"You've seen Donald?" she asked.

"Yes."

"What did he tell you?"

"The same as you have told, though not quite so fully."

She was outside the door and in the hall before realization came to her that her father's reply could mean only that Donald, like herself, had concealed his discovery of Eaton's ability to play polo. Why Donald had not told, she could not imagine; the only conclusion she could reach was that Donald's silence in some way menaced Eaton; for—suddenly now—it came to her what this must mean to Eaton. All that he had been so careful to hide regarding himself and his connections must be obtainable by Avery now, and Avery, for some purpose of his own, was withholding betrayal to make use of it as he might see fit.

She moved once more to return to her father; again she stopped; then, swiftly, she turned and went downstairs.

She looked hurriedly about for Avery. She did not find him, nor at first did she find Eaton either. She discovered him presently in the music room with Blatchford. Blatchford at once excused himself, tired evidently of his task of watching over Eaton.

Harriet caught herself together and controlled herself to her usual manner.

"What shall it be this evening, Mr. Eaton?" she asked. "Music, billiards?"

"Billiards, if you like," he responded.

They went up to the billiard room, and for an hour played steadily; but her mind was not upon the game—nor, she saw, was his. Finally, as they ended a game, he put his cue back in the rack and faced her.

"Miss Santoine," he said, "I want to ask a favor."

"What is it?"

"I want to go out—unaccompanied."

"Why?"

"I wish to speak to a friend who will be waiting for me."

"How do you know?"

"He got word to me at the country club today. Excuse me—I did not mean to inform on Mr. Avery; he was really most vigilant. I believe he only made one slip."

"He was not the only one observing you."

"I suppose not. In fact, I was certain of it. However, I received a message which was undoubtedly authentic and had not been overseen."

"But you were not able to make reply."

"I was able to receive all that was necessary."

She considered for a moment. "What do you want me to do?"

"Either because of my presence or because of what has happened—or perhaps normally—you have at least four men about the grounds, two of whom seem to be constantly on duty to observe anyone who may approach. I wish you to order them to let me pass and go to a place perhaps ten minutes' walk from here. If you do so, I will return at the latest within half an hour" (he glanced at his watch) "—to be definite, before a quarter of eleven."

"Why should I do this?"

He came close to her and faced her. "What do you think of me now, Miss Santoine?"

"Why—"

"You are certain now, are you not, that I had nothing to do with the attack on your father—that is, in any other connection than that the attack might be meant for me. I denied yesterday that the men in the automobile meant to run me down; you did not accept that denial. I may as well admit to you that I know perfectly well they meant to kill me. They are likely to try again to kill me."

"We recognize that too," she answered. "The men on watch about the house are warned to protect you as well as watch you."

"I appreciate that."

"But are they all you have to fear, Mr. Eaton?" She was thinking of Donald Avery.

He seemed to recognize what was in her mind; his eyes, as he gazed intently at her, clouded, then darkened still more with some succeeding thought. "No, not all."

"And it will aid you to—to protect yourself if you see your friend tonight?"

"Yes."

"But why should not one of Father's men be with you?"

"Unless I were alone, my friend would not appear."

"I see."

He moved away from her, then came back; the importance to him of what he was asking was very plain to her—he was shaking nervously with it. "Miss Santoine," he said intently, "you do not think badly of me now. I do not have to doubt that; I can see it; you have wanted me to see it. I ask you to trust me for a few minutes tonight. I cannot tell you whom I wish to see or why, except that the man comes to do me a service and to endanger no one—except those trying to injure me."

She herself was trembling with her desire to help him, but recollection of her father held her back; then swiftly there came to her the thought of Gabriel Warden; because Warden had tried to help him—in some way and for some reason which she did not know—Warden had been killed. And feeling that in helping him there might be danger to herself, she suddenly and eagerly welcomed that danger, and made her decision.

"You'll promise, Mr. Eaton, not to try to—leave?"

"Yes."

"Let us go out," she said.

She led the way downstairs and, in the hall, picked up a cape; he threw it over her shoulders and brought his overcoat and cap. But in his absorption he forgot to put them on until, as they went out into the garden together, she reminded him; then he put on the cap. The night was clear and cool, and no one but themselves seemed to be about the house.

"Which way do you want to go?" she asked.

He turned toward the forested acres of the grounds which ran down to a ravine at the bottom of which a little stream trickled toward the lake. As they approached the side of this ravine, a man appeared and investigated them. He recognized the girl's figure and halted.

"It's all right, Willis," she said quietly.

"Yes, ma'am."

They passed the man and went down the path into the ravine and up the tiny valley. Eaton halted.

"You don't mind waiting here a few moments for me?"

"No," she said. "You will return here?"

"Yes," he said; and with that permission, he left her.

Both had spoken so that the man above could not have heard; and Harriet now noticed that, as her companion hurried ahead, he went almost noiselessly. She stood still, shivering a little now in the cold; and she listened, she no longer heard his footsteps. What she had done was done; then just as she was telling herself that it must be many moments before she would know whether he was coming back, she heard him returning; at some little distance, he spoke her name so as not to frighten her. She knew at once it was he, but a change in the tone surprised her. She stepped forward to meet him.

"You found your friend?"

"Yes."

"What did he tell you? I mean what is wrong that you did not expect?"

She heard his breath come fast.

"Nothing," he denied.

"No; you must tell me! Can't you trust me?"

"Trust you!" he cried. He turned to her and seized her hands. "You ask me to—trust you!"

"Yes; I've trusted you. Can't you believe as much in me?"

"Believe in you, Miss Santoine!" He crushed her fingers in his grasp. "Oh, my God, I wish I could!"

"You wish you could?" she echoed The tone of it struck her like a blow, and she tore her hands away. "What do you mean by that?"

He made no reply but stood staring at her through the dark. "We must go back," he said queerly. "You're cold."

She did not answer but started back up the path to the house. He seemed to have caught himself together against some impulse that stirred him strongly. "The man out there who saw us? He will report to your father, Miss Santoine?" he asked unsteadily.

"Reports for Father are first made to me."

"I see." He did not ask her what she was going to do; if he was assuming that her permission to exceed his set limits bound her not to report to her father, she did not accept that assumption, though she would not report to the blind man tonight, for she knew he must now be asleep. But she felt that Eaton was no longer thinking of this. As they entered the house and he helped her lay off her cape, he suddenly faced her.

"We are in a strange relation to each other, Miss Santoine—stranger than you know," he said unevenly.

She waited for him to go on.

"When the time comes that you comprehend what our actual relation is, I—I want you to know that I understand that whatever you have done was done because you believed it might bring about the greater good. I—I have seen in you—in your father—only kindness, high honor, sympathy. If I did not know—"

She started, gazing at him, what he said had absolutely no meaning for her. "What is it that you know?" she demanded.

He did not reply; his hand went out to hers, seized it, crushed it, and he started away. As he went up the stairs—still, in his absorption, carrying cap and overcoat—she stood staring after him in perplexity.

CHAPTER XVI

The Fight in the Study.

Eaton dismissed the man who had been waiting in his rooms for him; he locked the door and carefully drew down all the window shades. Then he put his overcoat, folded as he had been carrying it under his arm, on the writing table in the center of the room, and from its folds and pockets took a "breast-drill" such as iron workers use in drilling steel, an automatic pistol with three clips of cartridges, an electric flashlight and a little bottle of nitroglycerin. He loaded the pistol and put it in his pocket; then he carefully inspected the other things.

He raised a shade and window, and sat in the dark. The night was cloudy and very dark. He gazed at the south wing of the house; the windows of the first floor were closed and the curtains drawn; but tonight there was no light in the room. Then in the dark he moved to the table where he had left his overcoat, and distributed in his pockets and within his clothing the articles he had brought; and now he felt again in the overcoat and brought out a short, strong bar of steel curved and flattened at one end—a "jimmy" for forcing the windows.

Eaton slipped off his shoes and went to his room door; he opened the door and found the hall dark and quiet. He stepped out, closing his door carefully behind him, and with great caution he descended the stairs. He went to a window in the drawing room which was set in a recess and so placed that it was not visible from other windows in the house. He opened this window and let himself down upon the lawn. He gained the south corner of the wing, unobserved or at least without sign that he had been seen, and went on around it.

He stopped at the first high French window on the south. As he tried to slip his jimmy under the bottom of the sash, the window, to his amazement, opened silently upon its hinges; it had not been locked. The heavy curtains within hung just in front of him; he put out his hand and parted them. Then he started back in astonishment and crouched close to the ground; inside the room was a man moving about, flashing an electric torch before him and then exploring an instant in darkness and flashing his torch again.

Eaton had not been at all prepared for this; now he knew suddenly that he ought to have been prepared for it. If the man within the room was not the one who had attacked him with the motor, he was closely allied with that man, and what he was after now was the same thing Eaton was after. He drew his pistol, and loosing the safety, he made it ready to fire; with his left hand, he clung to the short, heavy jimmy. He stepped into the great room through the curtains, and treading noiselessly in his stocking feet, he advanced upon the man, moving forward in each period of darkness between the flashes of the electric torch.

Now, at the further side of the room, another electric torch flashed out. There were at least two men in the room, working together—or rather, one was working, the other supervising; for Eaton heard now a steady, almost inaudible grinding noise as the second man worked. Eaton halted again and waited; if there were two, there might be others.

His pulses were beating faster and hotter, and he felt the blood rushing to his head and his hands growing cold with his excitement; but he was conscious of no fear. He crouched and crept forward noiselessly again. No other light appeared in the room, and there was no sound elsewhere from the darkness; but the man who supervised had moved closer to the other. The grinding noise had stopped; it was followed by a sharp click; the men, side by side, were bending over something; and the light of the man who had been working, for a fraction of a second shot into the face of the other. He muttered some short, hoarse imprecation, but before Eaton heard the voice, he had stopped as if struck, and his breath had gone from him.

His instant's glimpse of that face astounded, stunned, stupefied him. He could not have seen that man! The fact was impossible! He must have been mad; his mind must have become unreliable to let him even imagine it. Then came the sound of the voice—the voice of the man whose face he had seen! It was he! And, in place of the paralysis of the first instant, now a wild, savage throe of passion seized Eaton; his pulses leaped so it seemed they must burst his veins, and he gulped and choked. He had not filled in with insane fancy the features of the man whom he had seen; the voice witnessed too that the man in the dark by the wall was he whom Eaton—if he could have dreamed such a fact as now had been disclosed—would have circled the world to catch and destroy; yet now with the destruction of that man in his power—for he had but to aim and empty his automatic pistol at five paces—such destruction at this moment could not suffice; mere shooting that man would be petty, ineffectual. Eaton's fingers tightened on the handle of his pistol, but he held it now not as a weapon to fire but as a dull weight with which to strike. The grip of his left hand clamped onto the short steel bar, and with lips parted—breathing once, it seemed, for each heartbeat and yet choking, suffocating—he leaped forward.

At the same instant—so that he could not have been alarmed by Eaton's leap—the man who had been working moved his torch, and the light fell upon Eaton.

"Look out!" the man cried in alarm to his companion; with the word the torch vanished.

The man toward whom Eaton rushed did not have time to switch off his light; he dropped it instead; and as Eaton sprang for him, he crouched. Eaton, as he struck forward, found nothing; but below his knees, Eaton felt a man's powerful arms tackling him; as he struggled to free himself, a swift, savage lunge lifted him from his feet; he was thrown and hurled backward.

Eaton ducked his head forward and struggled to turn, as he went down, so that a shoulder and not his head or back would strike the floor first. He succeeded in this, though in his effort he dropped the jimmy. He clung with his right hand to the pistol, and as he struck the floor, the pistol shot off; the flash of flame spurted toward the ceiling. Instantly the grip below his knees was loosed; the man who had tackled him and hurled him back had recoiled in the darkness Eaton got to his feet but crouched and crept about behind a table, aiming his pistol over it in the direction in which he supposed the other men must be. The sound of the shot had ceased to roar through the room; the gases from the powder only made the air heavier. The other two men in the room also waited, invisible and silent. The only light, in the great curtained room, came from the single electric torch lying on the floor. This lighted the legs of a chair, a corner of a desk and a circle of books in the cases on the wall. As Eaton's eyes became more accustomed to the darkness, he could see vague shapes of furniture. If a man moved, he might be made out; but if he stayed still, probably he would remain indistinguishable.

The other men seemed also to have recognized this; no one moved in the room, and there was complete silence.

The Lady Was Right.

The lady who was thinking of buying an automobile had had the agent show her the carburetor, the differential, the transmission and everything she thought seemed important about the car. Then she said, "Now, are you sure you've shown me all the things I ought to know about?"

"Why, yes madam, I think so" replied the agent.

"Well then, where is the depreciation? I am told that is one of the most important things to know about when are you getting a car."—Youth's Companion.

MUSKRAT AND FRED

Fred had gone on a picnic with several of his friends. They were making coffee when suddenly Fred saw a muskrat. The muskrat was looking at Fred.

"I know what he is saying to me," said Fred, after he had pointed out the muskrat to the others.

The muskrat was sitting by the root of an old tree and was on the opposite side of the river from where Fred and his friends were having their picnic.

"What do you suppose he is saying?" the others asked Fred.

"He is saying," Fred continued, "'Well, what in the name of old Birch Bark is going on over there? Well, Well! I'll just watch those silly creatures.

"'Alas, now I will know no privacy. The warm weather has come and the people will come out and I will have no rest until next winter.

"'By the ghost of my immortal great-grandfather ten times removed, it was better when wolves and bears were about.'

"Of course," Fred added, "it is not certain that these are his thoughts, but if they aren't they should be.

"Otherwise he would have no reason for looking so cross about our picnic.

"Although," Fred went on, "it might really be excusable in his case, for it seems to me that if I lived in a muddy bank of a river I would have a bad temper, what with colds in the head, rheumatism and tired, cold feet."

As Fred said this the muskrat decided it was time to let his family see what was going on, so up he went along his side of the bank and before long came back again with five relatives.

They all watched to see what mischief Fred and his friends might be up to, and the youngest of all was made to act as guard while the others decided they would be off.

Strangely enough, the young muskrat was very curious. He was more curious than the first one had been, and more curious than muskrats usually are.

"I'm going to stay around," he said to himself. "The others seem to have seen all they want to see. But I want to watch these curious people amusing themselves as they sit about and eat."

So the young muskrat wandered about and something was thrown in his direction. He picked it up, and it was good to eat.

Yes, it was a most delightful sandwich. He knew his family would not approve of his eating food given him in that way. He knew that the old muskrat who had been around first would have said to him:

"Young idiot, do you not remember our aunt's mother's cousin was just such a fool as you, and now where is he?

"Where is he, I ask you? He is the middle piece of a lady's fur coat; that is where he is."

But the young muskrat was glad his wise relation was not around to speak to him in this way, for one's elders were silly, all young creatures knew that!

And besides, the soft sandwich had been very good. And now he gobbled another one for, on second thoughts his wise relatives and the eldest of all especially, might not warn him against the picnic food, but might eat it themselves.

And the sandwich did him no harm. No, indeed; but Fred wondered if he might not get too many fine ideas in his muskrat head.

Yes, Fred was afraid that perhaps he might think that he was to be given delicacies like this, and that his young head might be turned.

Or perhaps he might suffer the same fate as his relative who was now in a lady's fur coat.

But still Fred would give him nothing but the best of food, and perhaps it was nice for a muskrat to be able to enjoy a picnic as well as people.

That was what Fred finally decided.

If people enjoyed picnics then surely once in a while a muskrat might be given the joy of a picnic, too.

And whenever after that Fred went on a picnic he always spoke of the muskrat to whom he had thrown sandwiches and who had seemed as fond of eating picnic food as any of them.

And he wondered, too, if the muskrat boasted to the other muskrats of the attention he had received

For surely it was enough to make a muskrat boast a little bit, at any

FIRE SWEEPS PIGEON HILLS

The worst forest fire to have occurred in the Jacobs Mills section of the Pigeon Hills, started Thursday morning, while Ray Moul, of Hanover, was engaged in clearing a space he wanted to use for a garden in the Moul orchard. He placed all the rubbish on a pile and lighted it. The flames were carried through the orchard into the hills, which are covered with heavy timber, which ignited. Word was sent to Fire Warden Moul, who with the assistance of a hundred men, worked six hours before they were able to get it under control, when the men were allowed to return to their homes. The area covered was about 60 acres from the starting point to the peak of the hills, known as High Rock. There were no houses in the section damaged by the fire, and the owners of the timber include Henry Sell, Wentz and Baker. The loss cannot be estimated. The fire in the timber land was fanned by a light wind blowing it into the wood.

Between 15 tnd 20 acres of woodland were burned Friday in the Pigeon Hills, on the southeast slope at Moul's orchard. Although Thursday's fire in this same vicinity was apparently got under control, it is thought that the origin of Friday's blaze was from shouldering embers of the fire Thursday. The fire's path was leading to a large peach and apple orchard owned by F. E. Cremer, but was under control before damaging the orthard. A large force of citizens of the vicinity were fighting the blaze, under the direction of Fire Wardens Walter Moul, of Heidelberg township, and Claude Auchey, Paradise township. Boy Scouts of Hanover were patroling the district, extinguishing small blazes. They did good work. The blaze was under control about one hour after its origin, at 3 o'clock that afternoon.

FIND WHISKEY IN RAID ON OFFICE

On instructions from Burgess Bair, Chief Crabbs conducted a raid on the office of Harry Little, in Melhorn building, Hanover, Saturday night. The Burgess acted on information to the effect that Little was selling intoxicating liquor. Three and one-half quarts of whiskey were found in the room. This was confiscated. Little was arrested and committed to the borough lockup, but was released later, on bail. The warrant for his arrest was issued by Justice Sell. The suspicion of the burgess had been aroused recently, when the number of drunks on the streets of Hanover, close by the Melhorn building, increased in number.

Information came to the ears of the Burgess late Saturday evening to the effect that Little was dispensing liquors and beers to men, women and minors, at the liberal charge of 50 cents for a drink of whiskey and 25 cents for a bottle of beer. The complaint conveyed the further information that Little has been doing this since September 1922. Squire Sell was called from his slumbers to issue the warrant.

Little is a cigar maker. The office which was rented ostensibly as a gunning club headquarters is located between two social clubs.

Miss Helen Bunty, who had been on the United States Mercy hospital ship, serving as a nurse, is spending a leave of absence of about a month at her home in McSherrystown. The hospital ship sailed from San Francisco to Philadelphia recently.

THE SICK.

Kenneth Yohe, a member of the Senior class of the New Oxford H. S., was forced to go home at noon on Friday suffering from measles. He was graduated with the class of ten that evening nevertheless. Vernon Yohe, a younger brother, also a pupil in the local schools, is likewise suffering from the disease.

Mrs. J. C. Hoffnagle and two children, Lincoln Way, West, and Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hafer Miller, Lincoln Way, East, are recovering from scarlet fever.

The home of John J. Livelsperger, Edgegrove, is quarantined for diphtheria, one of the children having contracted the disease.

Claude J. Lawrence, Centennial, is ill.

Mrs. C. E. Miller, McSherrystown, suffered a slight stroke at the home of her son, Augustus E. Miller.

Chas. Berkheimer who works in Newark, N. J., has been home at Abbottstown recuperating from an attack of rheumatism.

George Reichart, Sr., Abbottstown, who had been confined to bed for the past week with illness, is able to be about again.

Mrs. Geo. Fitzgerald, Gettysburg, is suffering with inflamatory rheumatism. George Fitzgerald, who has been confined to his home, is able to be out again.

James Boyd, White Hall, has been seriously ill for some time.

John N. Marks, a former resident of Littlestown, who had been ill at his home in Harrisburg, is much improved.

Marian, young son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Haar, Abbottstown, is a sufferer with pneumonia.

Blanche, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Haar, Abbottstown, is afflicted with the measles.

Mrs. Jos. H. Hemler, McSherrystown, has been seriously ill, as has been Hugh Miller, that place.

Ruth and Esther Carbaugh, of Mt. Pleasant, have been on the sick list.

Mrs. Jacob A. Little, of McSherrystown, who had been confined to bed for several months suffering from a nervous breakdown, is now able to sit up in her room.

Mrs. John Keefer, of McSherrystown, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Thursday evening.

H. B. Sefton, Gettysburg, has been sick.

There were no services at the Mt. Joy Lutheran charge, Sunday, because several children in the family of Rev. and Mrs. L. K. Young have contracted measles.

Wilbert Myers, East Berlin R1, has been sick.

Mrs. Mary Felix, mother of Mrs. Ida Sanders, near New Oxford, who is with her daughter, Mrs. Orner, in Cashtown, is ill. Pius Felix, Cashtown, is confined to his bed with cancer of the throat. A daughter of Dorcey Martz, that place, is seriously sick.

Jacob Brown, one of East Berlin's aged citizens, who had been critically ill for some time, is improved. His daughter, Mrs. R. J. Myers, who had been at the bedside of her father for about a month, left for her home in Washington, D. C.

REAL ESTATE SALES

F. V. Topper & Company, real estate agents, have closed a deal with Jacob Melhorn, of McSherrystown, whereby Mr Melhorn has sold to Pius I. Horwedel, of Conewago township, a 24-acre tract of land in McSherrystown, improved with a good frame barn. Mr. Horwedel also purchased a plot of ground near the public school building. Possession at once. This is one of the biggest real estate deals pulled off in McSherrystown for some years.

Wm. Reichard purchased the Humphrey Miller property, known as the toll-gate property, on the East Berlin pike, Saturday, for $900.

C. J. Delone and wife to Ira Stambaugh, property in Conewago township.

Charles Trostle purchased the farm belonging to Ray Gitt, Two Taverns,

MARRIAGE LICENSES

INVESTIGATION STILL GOING ON

Behind closed doors Tuesday afternoon a special legislative committee probing conditions in the state banking department, heard directors and several employes relate the manner of doing business at the City bank of York, now short approximately $1,000,000 in its funds because of the admitted speculations of the cashier, Thomas B. Baird, and his assistant, William H. Boll. State banking department officials who are investigating conditions at the bank have not been able as yet to definitely fix the amount of the shortage. One of the most starling disclosures resulting from the investigation was forthcoming last week when a former York telephone operator was found living in Philadelphia as Mrs. Thomas Benton with a child the reputed father of whom is Baird. Baird's middle name is Benton. President Yost admitted that the directors had heard something of the personal habits of Boll, and that he had been taken to task and then given another chance.

Grier Hersh, president of the York Clearing House Association, and president of the York County National Bank, the oldest bank in York, has issued an appeal to the citizens of York, for co-operation in helping to smooth out the financial tangle caused by closing the City Bank. He called attention to the $4,500,000 of deposits and $3,000,000 loans tied up temporarily which affects virtually every person in the community Mr. Hersh's father was a native of New Oxford.

Affirming the decision of Judge McPherson in Orphans' court on January 12, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia Monday gave Mrs. Harriet R. Rhodes, of Freedom township, a verdict of $28,500, being the amount of securities held by the executor of her late husband's estate, with interest since January 1921. With the decision of the Supreme court comes an end to this interesting will controversy which has been waging in local court since Sept., 1921

REGISTERS START WORK

Most of the 40 registers and assessors of the various townships and boros in Adams county went to the office of the County Commissioners at the Court House Friday and took out their spring assessment and registry books. The assessors were urged to complete the assessment of men and women who have moved into their jurisdiction since the fall assessment as soon as possible and return their assessment of real estate, stock, occupation and money taxable to the office of the Commissioners. They were told not to work out the other taxes.

The register-assessors will also register every man and woman in the various voting districts in the county for purposes of the fall municipal election. On July 17 and 18, the registers will sit at the various polling places in the county when additional enrollments may be made or in order to change the party declaration of the voters as announced in their first registration. On September 4 and 5, the registers will again sit at the polling places for the purpose of changing the original list or adding names to it.

KRALLTOWN CHILD SMOTHERS TO DEATH

Suffocation caused the death of Mervin, the nine-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, of near Kralltown, Friday morning. The child had been down stairs earlier in the morning, but was put back to bed by Mrs. Williams. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were working in the garden, and about 9:30 Mrs. Williams went to see if the baby was alright. She saw the child wrapped in a bed covering, caught between the spring and rail of the bed. Becoming alarmed, she took the child from the covers, and found life was already extinct. Dr. H. B. Hetrick, on examining the child, at about 10 o'clock, found that it had been dead for a period of about one hour. The child is survived by his parents only.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP BY THIS SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

BILL GOES THROUGH

A bill presented by Representative Grover C. Myers, of Adams county, has been passed by the House with only 16 negative votes. This measure was drawn up by C. W. Bucher, Mt. Joy township, president of the Adams County Justices of the Peace Association, for the purpose of permitting the commissioners of this county to maintain a complete digest of the laws of the State and of court decisions for the use of the Association. Due to the apparent favor with which the bill was received by the House little trouble in having it passed by the Senate is anticipated, Mr. Bucher said Thursday night.

Members of the Gettysburg School Board Thursday evening elected all teachers who were applicants for positions in the borough's public schools. Miss Helen L. Cope was reelected supervising principal of the town's schools. Other teachers elected included Prof. J. Guy Wolfe and Lloyd Hartman. Miss Hattie B. McGrew and Wimbert Neely were not applicants for reelecton. Miss McGrew, it is understood, will retire from the teaching profession in which she has been engaged for a period covering 51 years, and Mr. Neely has accepted a position at the Gettysburg National Bank.

Paul Golden, Bonneauville, purchased a Ford touring car the past week.

MAY PURCHASE BELL STOCK AT YORK OFFICE

Bell Telephone System stock may be purchased at any Business Office of the Company, according to an announcement by H. F. Bollinger, Local Manager, Tuesday. Purchase may be made for cash or on the installment plan.

This plan is put in effect through the Bell Telephone Securities Co., a part of the Bell System. When an order is placed at the local office, the stock is purchased on the New York Stock Exchange by the Securities Company. The price quoted each day is the previous day's closing on the Exchange.

During the past year efforts have been made to widen the distribution of Bell System stock through local banks and brokers. The new plan is supplementary to the previous efforts and places the stock within the reach of many who may desire to purchase it, but who have no local connections through which the purchase may be financed.

The Securities Company is not financing this plan on a profit making basis, but is carrying out the ideal of the Bell System "Every Subscriber a Stockholder."

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (Bell System) has the widest stock distribution of any corporation in the country today. There are more than a quarter of a million stockholders. With this new system of distribution, by which the stock may be purchased on very low monthly installments, there should be a still greater increase in the number of share holders.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the County Commissioners, Court House, Gettysburg, Penna., on May 22, 1923, at ten o'clock and opened at 11 o'clock for furnishing tools, labor, materials and machinery necessary and proper for the construction complete of the following county bridges:

Zora Bridge over Miney Creek in Liberty Township which bridge consists of 2 37-ft. spans in the clear and 24-ft. roadway.

Willoughby Run Bridge over Willoughby Run in Cumberland Township which bridge consists of 2 37-ft. spans in the clear and 24-ft. roadway.

These bridges shall be built in full accordance with plans and specifications now on file at the office of the County Commissioners. Copies of the said plans and specifications may be obtained by depositing $5.00 for each set with the Chief Clerk of the County Commissioners, which amount will be returned if the plans and specifications are returned in good condition on the day of the letting.

Each bidder must accompany his proposal with a certified check for 10% of his bid, made payable to the Commissioners of Adams County, as a guarantee of good faith and to protect the County from any loss by failure to comply with the terms of the proposal.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

EAST BERLIN RR. CO. BUYS BUS RUNNING THRU HERE

Amos Butt, of Gettysburg, who has been operating passenger bus line from that place to Hanover by way of New Oxford and the Cross Keys for the past eight years, has sold his motor busses, route and good will to the East Berlin RR. Co. who will take over the business as soon as the legal transfer can be made. By this transaction the East Berlin company will be allowed to operate passenger busses between York and Gettysburg along the Lincoln Highway and a through schedule will be put into effect as soon as the proper arrangements can be made. When in operation passengers for East Berlin or Hanover will change busses at Abbottstown.

Despite the housewives' boycott of sugar, heartily indorsed by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, and given moral support by President Harding, William A. Miller, manager of the John C. Lower Co., wholesale grocery concern, Gettysburg, expresses the opinion that sugar will go even higher than its present retail quotation. Basing his belief on the economic law of supply and demand, Mr. Miller declared that with the approach of the canning season and its inevitable heavy demand for sugar in preserving of small fruits, an increase in the retail price may be looked for.

Whooping Cough—This is a very dangerous disease, particularly to children under five years of age, but when no paregoric, codeine or other opiate is given, is easily cured by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Most people believe that it must run its course, not knowing that the time is very much shortened, and that there is little danger from the disease when this remedy is given. It has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, with pronounced success. It is safe and pleasant to take.

The Penn township tax rate for the ensuing year was fixed at 8 mills with a sinking fund of 5 mills and a poll tax of $4. All of last year's teachers were reelected, including Midway—Theodore S. Bortner, secondary; Miss Mary Rinehart, intermediate; Miss Helen Johns, primary; Clearview—H B Shutt, secondary, Miss Catherine Miller property. The poll tax last year was $3.

The following East Berlin citizens have had their houses wired recently: L K Baker, A D. Leib, Mrs. Elizabeth Welkert, J. B. Grove, Abram Altland, Elwood Murphey, Jacob Mummert, and Harry Jacobs Reuben Altland and Wm. Emlet, Abbottstown, are also among the new electric light patrons.

Evils of Constipation.—Perhaps the most serious of the diseases caused by constipation is appendicitis. If you would avoid this dangerous disease, keep your bowels regular. For this purpose Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent, easy to take and mild and gentle in effect.

Adams county collected $1,003.91 gasoline tax during March, and York county $3,972 36. The total collected in the state was $194,630.04, as compared with $125.043.49 in March 1922. Philadelphia led with collection of $41,043.67, and Pike county held last place with $49.29.

Harvey Jacobs has left for Montana after having visited among his brothers and sisters about East Berlin for a few months

FIFTEEN NEW BUILDINGS WILL BE ADDED TO THE BELL SYSTEM IN PENNSYLVANIA THIS YEAR

AND this does not include twenty large additions to present central office buildings.

Nearly four millions of dollars will be spent on building construction alone.

Millions of dollars' worth of equipment will be placed in them—switchboards, cables, terminal room apparatus, and other central office mechanisms.

We spent three millions for land and buildings last year, but the growing needs for telephone service in Pennsylvania make necessary a continuation of this tremendous construction program.

Lumbago.—This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dann, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and aches."

Announcement of the betrothal of Miss Helen Sefton to Frederick P. Drink Water If Kidneys Bother

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

NEW FIRE COMPANY

York Springs, in a meeting Thursday night, organized a Fire Company of the citizens of that town, assisted by a committee from Gettysburg. About 25 residents of York Springs attended the first meeting, which was held in Jacobs' Hotel there. Howard Gardner was elected temporary chairman, and 18 of the citizens present signed their names as members of the new fire company. Election of officers then followed, resulting as follows: Howard Gardner, president; Charles Pearson, secretary; George Dietrick, treasurer; C. M. Boyer, fire chief. Mr. Gardner then appointed the following committee on membership: C. F. Brinkerhoff, William Jacobs and W E. Grove. The committee on by-laws is J. Harvey Neely, Edward Keefer, O. Diller, William Weidner, W. Roy Starry and Amos Bennet. Another meeting was held Tuesday evening in Boyer's Hall.

POINTS THE WAY

Resident will Interest Our Readers. The Statement of this Littlestown

Our neighboring town, Littlestown, points the way in the words of one of its most respected residents::

Elias Fissel, ex-sheriff, S. Queen St., Littlestown, Pa., says: "I did a lot of carpenter work and I know it was the heavy lifting that strained my back and put my kidneys out of fix. My bladder was badly inflamed. The kidney secretions burned in passage and often I had to get up during the night to pass the secretions. When I stooped and went to straighten, my back felt as though it were torn to shreds. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended and a few boxes of Doan's took the inflamation from my bladder and put the kidney action back to normal and did away with all the backtches."

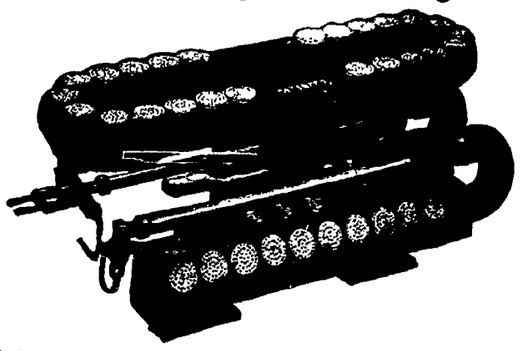
OXO-GAS

Made from Kerosene (Coal Oil) and Air

For Cooking and Heating

COAL IS SCARCE—IT WILL BE TO YOUR ADVANTAGE TO INVESTIGATE AT ONCE



OXO-GAS Heaters for All Purposes. NO SMOKE, ASHES OR SOOT POSITIVELY NOISELESS

The most efficient and economical method of producing heat from coal consists of extracting a gas from coal and burning the gas, but only about 35% of heat units are used in this way. In the ordinary stove only about 28% of the heat is utilized. OXO-GAS produced from common coal oil (kerosene), particularly when mixed with 96% of atmospheric air (oxygen), is the utilization of every heat unit of fuel.

She was a daugther of the late Jacob and Sara Bream, of Ground Oak, and is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Henry Gardner, Gardners; Mrs. David Eichelberger, Lemoyne; and Mrs. Harry Stitzel, of near York Springs, and four brothers, H. J., of Chambersburg; Joseph A., Gardners; Ira, of Aspers, and Taylor Bream, of Gardners R. D. Funeral was held Tuesday at Ground Oak Lutheran church.

John C. Mickley, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Mickley, Mt. Hope, died Saturday morning, aged 13 days. Besides the parents a number of brothers and sisters survive, including Mrs. John Orndorff, Hanover.

Mrs. Ida J. Myers, wife of Gervus W. Myers, died at her home in Gettysburg, Tuesday evening, after a lingering illness of more than a year, aged 52 years. Mrs. Myers was a daughter of the late William and Elizabeth Baugher, near Hampton, and is survived by her husband and 3 children, including Erny L. Myers, at home.

Geraldine R. Knox, 8-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank I. Knox, died Wednesday at the home of her parents in Gettysburg, from pneumonia. Two sisters and two brothers, at home, survive.

Mrs. Savilla V. Forsyth, widow of Harry L. Forsyth, died on Thursday morning at her home in Cashtown after an illness of three months, due to infirmities. Her husband died two years ago. Surviving are 3 children, including Wm. Forsyth, of Franklin township. Two brothers, Wm. Saum, of Orrtanna, and John B. Saum, of Chambersburg, also survive.

Mrs. Jacob N. Moritz died at Thornton, Iowa, on April 24th, aged 62 years. The deceased, who was Sarah E. Nary, of Orrtanna, is survived by her husband, a former resident of Cashtown, several children, a sister and a brother.

Betty M. Johnston, 6-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Johnston, who recently moved to Gettysburg from Waynesboro, died at the home of her parents, Thursday morning. A brother and sister also survive.

Mrs. Annie Hoffman, 43, wife of Charles Hoffman, of near Davidsburg, died at the West Side sanitorium Saturday aweek, from peritonitis. She is survived by her husband, and one son, Wayne; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Mummert, of East Berlin, and the following brothers and sisters: George, Nevin and Ada Mummert, of East Berlin; Oscar, of Mulberry; William, of York; Mrs. John Reynolds, of Wilkinsburg; Mrs. May, of Dover, and Mrs. Michael Burgard, of Paradise township.

Levi H. Stair, of near Littlestown, died on Wednesday afternoon in the Sykesville, Md., sanitarium from a cerebral hemorrhage, aged 61 years. Surviving him are two brothers, Geo. W. Stair, Hanover, and Amos Stair, Spring Grove, and a sister, Mrs. Sevilla Hesson, Union Mills. He was a carpenter by trade. He was never married. The body was brought to Littlestown where burial was made on Saturday.

Mrs. Stephen Huber died on Friday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Craig, Chambersburg, of complications, aged 90 years. Surviving are four daughters, including Mrs. E. H. Hummelbaugh, Gettysburg, and 2 sons.

MARRIAGES

George J. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Miller, and Miss Anna G. Ginter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ginter, Mt. Pleasant township, were united in marriage on Tuesday morning in St. Joseph's church, Bonneauville, by the Rev. Fr. Matthew Scanlon, rector. The attendants were Miss Doris Rutters, of Kohlers, and Roy Ginter, brother of the bride. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's aunt, Mrs. E. A. Melhorn, Bonneauville, following the ceremony, and a reception was also held there Tuesday evening. The couple will reside for the present at the Melhorn home.

A record for speed in marrying a couple and making return of the ceremony to the Clerk of the Courts was established Saturday afternoon by the Rev. E. H. Hummelbaugh, pastor of the Gettysburg-Salem U. B. charge. In less than one hour after Earl W. Long and Edna L. Frye, both of Martinsburg, W. Va., were granted a marriage license by J. R. Hartman, clerk of the courts, a return of the ceremony was made by Rev. Hummelbaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Zachary J. Peters, of Guernsey, have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Esther V., to Henry C. Pickering, of Woodbourne, to take place this Thursday evening, May 10, in the Menallen meeting house, Flora Dale.

Ernest Stonesifer, of Hanover, and Miss Retta Myers, of Taneytown, Md., were married Thursday by Rev. W. Sherman Kerchner, pastor of Heidelberg Reformed church, York.

On Thursday evening at the Reformed church parsonage at Arendtsville, the Rev. T. C. Hesson married Miss Lottie M. Shaffer and Leonard D. Shaffer, both of Menallen township.

Howard Coulson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Coulson, Hanover, and Miss Bella Andrews were married last night at the home of the bride, in Frederick.

Miss Bessie E. Walter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Walter, of Biglerville, and Floyd N. Hartman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hartman, of Cashtown, were married by the Rev. Earl Bowman, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, Gettysburg, Saturday.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS.

Little Sarah Louise Slagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair S. Slagle, Lincoln Way, East, had her tonsils and adenoids removed at the Warner hospital on Friday. She is recuperating at her home.

Mrs. J. E. C. Miller, Sr., who recently underwent an operation at the Warner hospital, returned to her home on Lincoln Way, West, on Saturday. She is improving.

Mrs. Ambrose Wagaman, Gettysburg R9, was admitted to the Warner Hospital over the weekend.

Patients discharged from the Warner Hospital Saturday were Albert Spangler, Gettysburg; Laura Himes, New Oxford R1; Grace Wagner, Table Rock, and Mrs. Frank Schuchart, Hanover R5.

John Washington, colored, Gettysburg, was admitted to the Warner Hospital. Daniel Kime, Gettysburg R7, and Mrs. Daniel Rock, of Fairfield, were discharged.

Miss Grace Harner, who has been confined to a York hospital for the past eleven weeks, is still in a serious condition as the result of pneumonia and influenza, with which she has been suffering. Miss Harner is a daughter of the late John N. Harner, near East Berlin, and her mother is Mrs. Nina Harner, who recently moved to Hanover.

Mrs. M. L. Rudisill, daughter Esther, Mrs. S. C. Young and son Chas., Two Taverns, were recently at Harrisburg where they visited the former's husband, the Rev. M. L. Rudisill, who has been a patient at the hospital for the past several months. They found his condition good and if he continues to improve he expects to return to his home in a few weeks.

A West End resident requests us to ask publicly why the alley in the rear of the Burgess' residence on Lincoln Way, West, is permitted to be blocked by junk. Another West Ender wants to know why the Burgess objects to his men running trucks with cutouts open and permits every other Tom, Dick and Harry to violate traffic ordinances here day in and day out.

Representatives of the state highway department were located on the principal roads leading into town and other highways in York and Adams counties Sunday for the purpose of taking statistics relating to the amount and nature of traffic.

DOES HOUSEWORK LIKE IT WAS PLAY

Mrs. Little Declares Tanlac Restored Full Strength After Overcoming Indigestion.

"Since taking Tanlac my troubles have left me, and I never tire of telling about it," declares Mrs. Johanna Little, 3032 N. 17th St., Kansas City, Mo.

"My food often caused me much distress from gas, sourness and heartburn, and I scarcely ever wanted to eat. Headaches, biliousness and pains in my back kept me in hot water, and I hardly ever got any restful sleep. My nerves were excited and I was so run down it was all I could do to look after my housework.

"I searched the city for the right medicine, and consider it fortunate that I found Tanlac. Indigestion, sleeplessness and nervousness never bother me now, I can do my housework like it was play, and am strong and happy. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Practical Innovation.

Recent discussions concerning the decimal system of weights and measures render more interesting a curious paragraph reprinted in the Journal des Debats from its issue of August 22, 1806, when Napoleon I was at the height of his power. It states that there were two dials on the principal building of the Tuileries, one counting the hours by twelve and the other by ten. Taking advantage of the need for repairs, the dial divided into ten hours was destroyed, since, as the report goes on to say, "it had served for no purpose, except to show to what point the mania for innovation was capable of mounting in opposition to the settled habits of all times and all peoples."—Washington Star.

H.L.S. LOOK FOR THIS TRADE MARK

THE BIG TREES

IT WAS nearly dusk in the forest, but not one of the trees around the big oak tree was ready to be quiet for the night. And no wonder, for they all were very much upset.

That day a woodman had worked his way through the underbrush and had carefully looked at all the trees. He had walked all around the Big Oak and finally made a mark upon the bark.

None of the trees needed to be told what the mark meant! Year after year the same thing has happened to the unfortunate tree that bore the cross. Men with huge axes cut away the underbrush to make a path for their team, and then the dreadful sawing would begin.

But perhaps you do not know about the cruel saw. It is a long piece of steel with sharp, jagged teeth, and at each end is a handle, and with this saw the men work back and forth making a ringing and singing sound as they saw deeper and deeper into the trunk of the tree, but if you are not a tree the sound is quite pleasant to hear.

And this was the reason that all the trees around Big Oak were awake and sighing that night, for they knew it would soon be gone, though their sympathy did not make it any easier for Big Oak to bear the thought of its fate.

Just beneath the Oak grew a small pine tree, not very old, but, oh, so very wise as you will soon learn. Vainly had Pine Tree tried to make its voice heard above the moans and sighs of the larger trees, and when it was about ready to give up Chestnut Tree, swaying near, bent a branch low enough to notice little Pine.

"What is it you are trying to say away down there, Pine Tree?" it asked. "You will have to grow faster if you wish to talk to us."

In a brisk tone that made its needles stand quite straight it said: "I have something to say to Big Oak."

"It is very kind of you to be sorry," sighed the Oak, but tonight I really cannot bear any more sympathy."

Little Pine Tree saw that it had them all interested and bristling its needles it spoke in a sharp, clear voice so that all could hear. "Big Oak," it asked, "what have you ever done that was really useful?"

Big Oak lifted its branches in dismay at such a question; it swayed a little too, before it could find voice to reply, for everyone had looked upon Big Oak as the most important of the forest dwellers.

"Why, my big branches and leaves," it managed to gasp, "do they not furnish shade for all the forest folk who run about below and do not my strong limbs make homes for many others as well, and you ask me, who is the mighty one of the forest, of what use I have been in the world? Oh, this is too much, too much."

"Pine Tree, you are very small to be so wise, but if this be true," said the Chestnut Tree, "how did you find it out? You have never been out of the forest."

"It is rather a long story, but if you will be patient I will tell you all about it," answered the Little Pine.

"My mother was a Christmas tree, of course. She lived in the forest first, but she was marked and then one day she went to a big house and was dressed in gayly-colored trimmings and little children clapped their hands and danced about when they saw us—I mean her, my mother."

"How wonderful," murmured all the trees, looking with envy upon Big Oak, who now had raised itself to its full height and no longer felt sad.

"Did you see anything made of my wood?" asked the Chestnut Tree.

"I had only a little time to peek at things," replied the Pine, "but I know this, that every wood has its use and that if you all grow big and tall you will some day be chosen just as Big Oak is to be carried out of the forest and become useful and perhaps beautiful."

"Thank you, Little Pine, and good-night," murmured all the trees, as they quietly folded their leaves and went to sleep, contented and happy.

Little Pine had taught them a lesson that the things most dreaded sometimes turn out to be the greatest blessings in life.

Wanda Hawley

Miss Hawley, the "movie" star, is one of those women who are just as beautiful in the home or on the street as they are on the stage or on the screen. She is five feet, five inches tall and weighs 124 pounds. She is not what might be called petite, but she has a sprightly charm and vivaciousness all her own. Her real start up the ladder of fame came in 1918, when she was featured in a prominent production.

"What's in a Name?"

BY MILDRED MARSHALL

FACTS about your name; it's history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

JUDITH

JUDITH is sometimes confused with Edith because of its similarity of ending, but this is an erroneous contention. It really had its origin in the difficult northern name of Gyda or Gytha, which, because it sounds like Gith, the contraction of Eadgyth, is believed to have some connection. But Judith is purely northern, having belonged to the proud damsel of Hordaland, who refused to marry Harald Harfagre unless he was sole king of all Norway. Later, it was given to the semi-Danish ladies of Earl Godwin's family and melted into Gjutha. Finally Jutta appears as a contraction for Juditha.

Judith, according to the Old Testament, was the heroine of the book of the same name in the Apocrypha. She was a beautiful Jewess of Bethulia, who, when her town was besieged by Holoferness, the general of Nebuchadnezzar, attended him in his tent and when he was in his cups killed him and cut off his head, whereupon her townsmen fell upon the Assyrians and defeated them with great slaughter. Judith has always been a favorite Biblical name.

Perhaps because of this courageous deed of the Biblical heroine, Judith came to men "praised." Judithe and Juditha are favorite English derivatives. The Italians have a particularly musical version, Giuditta. Judy is a diminutive, used generally as a form of affection, except in the instance of the Judy of the famous Punch and Judy show.

Judith has been beloved of authors, but curiously enough her name has been rather neglected by the poets. There seems to be no noteworthy examples of odes to her or her heroic deeds. But the lack has not discouraged the popularity of her name in England and America, while the harmonious Italian version has great vogue in that country.

The jade is Judith's talismanic stone. Its milky green depths hold promise of freedom from danger and insure fearlessness in its wearer. It is a curative, according to popular superstition, and hence is believed to ward off disease and the jinx of bad luck. Tuesday is Judith's lucky day and 4 her mystic number.

BY MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

HOW MUCH LIGHT?

It is a very hard undertaking to seek to please everybody.—Publius Syrus.

IT IS a usual comment that men like bright lights in their homes while women like the softly shaded light, and the reason for the latter preference no doubt is due somewhat to the fact that the "dim, religious light" is far more favorable to one's complexion than the bright light that finds favor in masculine eyes. But, of course, all men do not like bright, glaring light, nor do all women like the light that is dull.

There are some newly rich people who find some sort of comfort in having all the lights in their homes burning in all the rooms of their houses during the evening. To them there seems to be rare satisfaction in never having to snap out an electric light but to pass from one room to another with no question as to the matter of lights. Somehow a flood of artificial lights indicates luxury to some folk. But truly it is not considered in the best taste to indulge in such an orgy of light. In the dining room the light should be subdued to a certain extent, preferably the light on the table should be given by wax tapers, and the side lights only bright enough to make it possible for servants to get about. There is a look of coziness about the dining room that is not too brightly lighted that the one that is a blaze of lights cannot possess.

When you have guests, you should to some extent consult their wishes concerning lights. That is, see that they have a convenient bedside light, especially if you know they are wakeful, and see that they are seated near the living room light if they are sewing or reading. Again, be sure, if your guests have a headache or eyes that are not strong, that you arrange the lights to be agreeable to them.

WHY TAKE LAXATIVES?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

MOON IS NOT DEAD WORLD

Recent Scientific Observations Seem to Prove Astronomers Have Long Held Wrong Idea.

Astronomers cling to the old idea that the moon is a dead world, destitute alike of air and water. But recent observations of W. H. Pickering, made at Mandeville, Jamaica, go to show that many changes occur with the alternation of lunar day and night. Great snow fields form in the mountain valleys, and then melt away; fog banks are seen and, very rarely, drifting clouds. The loftiest peaks are snow-capped. The moon's surface is pitted with volcanic craters; some of these measure 100 miles across. Each crater is surrounded by a mountain ring 1,000 to 20,000 feet in height.

According to Pickering, there are few, if any, such large and continuously active volcanic regions upon the surface of the earth. But the activity of the lunar volcanoes is now confined to the quiet emission of steam jets, like those found in Yellowstone National park. Certain variable dark areas on the moon may be due to vegetation.

The Disadvantages of Polygamy.

Occasionally the subject of polygamy comes up. And I have observed that women speak only of the hard fate of polygamous wives, and intimate that polygamy is always a joy for men. How about a man compelled to settle the rows of three or four wives and listen to their "jawing"? If a wife lacks ability to give an offending husband a whipping, it doesn't mean he escapes punishment.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Much Interest Being Shown in the Large Number of Women Safely Carried Through the Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Following Letters Are Impressive

Owing to modern methods of living, few woman approach this perfectly natural change without experiencing very annoying and often painful symptoms. Those dreadful hot flashes, nervousness, headaches, melancholia and irritability are only a few of the symptoms incident to this trying period of a woman's life, and the following letters prove the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to overcome these abnormal conditions.

"Fisherville, Ky.—"For several months I was under the doctor's care as he said my nervousness, chills, hot flashes and weakness was caused by the Change of Life, but I did not seem to get any better. I was not able to work and spent most of my time in bed. A friend called to see me and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I cannot tell you how much good the medicine did me, as I had such a hard time before taking it. I can only advise every woman passing through the Change of Life to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it did so much for me."—Mrs. EDWARD B. NEAL, Star Route, Fisherville, Ky.

A Michigan Woman Helped

Ionia, Michigan.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and had been under the doctor's care without any relief. A friend in Lansing, Mich., asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help them I will gladly answer their letters."—Mrs. MAX W. HAHN, 537 N. Jefferson Street, Ionia, Mich.

A New York Woman Helped

Syracuse, N. Y.—"I was used up with nervousness, weakness and hot flashes so I could hardly keep around, and could not get out much on account of those awful prickly feelings. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helping another woman with symptoms like mine. My husband got some for me, and after taking it five months I can get around and even do my housework, washing and ironing included, and my friends can see what a change it has made in me."—Mrs. SIDNEY HUMPHREY, 826½ Burnet Avenue, Syracuse, N. LESSON FOR MAY 13

DAVID, THE POET-KING

LESSON TEXT—I Sam. 16:1-3.

GOLDEN TEXT—Surely, goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.—Ps. 23:6.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ps. 51; Isa. 9:7; Jer. 33:15-26; Luke 1:32; Acts 22:29-24.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Shepherd Boy Chosen King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Calls a Boy to Be King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—David, as a Friend.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From the Life of David.

I. Samuel Mourns for Saul (v. 1).

1. Why He Mourned. The death of Saul was no doubt a personal loss to Samuel, for Saul was a commanding and lovable personality. Then, too, the ruin of so promising a career would deeply affect a soul like Samuel. Finally the humiliation to God and God's people grieved his heart.

2. Excessive Mourning Rebuked. The fact that God had rejected Saul should have lifted Samuel out of his grief. Excessive grief over that which God does is a reflection upon Him and should be rebuked. In all God's acts we should submit although it may change our plans. When sorrow becomes a hindrance to the discharge of duty, it merits rebuke.

II. Samuel Sent to Anoint David (vv. 1-3).

1. Samuel's Fear (v. 2). Perhaps by this time Saul was becoming a desperate character. Samuel knew that if Saul should hear that he was taking steps to anoint a successor to his throne, his own life would be in danger. Samuel was wise in submitting this difficult situation to the Lord. God's servants are to be brave. But even when going on errands for God we should not court danger. We should exercise the greatest caution so that unnecessary dangers be avoided.

2. The Lord's Direction (vv. 2, 3). The Lord smoothed the way for Samuel. He showed him how to perform his duty and escape the danger. Samuel was to take a heifer and announce that he was going to offer a sacrifice unto the Lord and to call Jesse to the sacrifice. The prophet was not told all that would happen. This is usually God's way with us. He gives us our work piece by piece and guides us step by step. Samuel's purpose was known only to him. It was to be kept a secret so that the news would not reach Saul. This was a shrewd device but entirely legitimate. There is not necessity for us to reveal all our purposes.

III. Samuel's Obedience (vv. 4-13).

1. The Trembling Elders of Bethlehem (vv. 4, 5). It seems that the whole nation was shot through with fear because of Saul's sin. To the elders' alarming inquiry Samuel responded with the assurance of peace, inviting them to join him in worshiping the Lord.

2. Examination of Jesse's Sons (vv. 6-12). The Lord had revealed to Samuel that one of Jesse's sons was to be the new king, but not the particular one. The selection of the right one was a most important matter as destinies hung upon it. (1) Eliab rejected (vv. 6, 7). Eliab was the eldest son and therefore he was the first presented as having first right to the place of honor. Further, he was a splendid specimen of a man, tall and majestic in appearance so that even Samuel was captivated by him as he had been by Saul. (10:24). Outward appearance was favorable but the realities seen by God were against him. God knows whom He can trust with great responsibilities. We frequently estimate men by their dress, culture, wealth and position. These are only surface manifestations and frequently lead us astray, but God looks into the heart. (2) David chosen (vv. 8-12). All but one of Jesse's sons had been looked upon but still the Lord's choice had not appeared. Jesse's reply to Samuel's question as to whether all his children had appeared seems to imply that David was not of much importance. He was considered good enough to watch the sheep but not important enough to be called to the feast. Because David was faithful as a shepherd boy, he was in line for promotion when God's given time arrived.

3. David Anointed (v. 13). When the shepherd lad appeared, the Lord directed Samuel to anoint him. When the oil was applied the Spirit of the Lord came upon him. David was a gifted and attractive lad but this was of no avail without the Spirit of God. Power must come from God. Only as we are anointed by the Holy Ghost can we truly do the Lord's will and work.

REMAIN ALWAYS THE SAME

Overwhelming Proof That Finger-Prints Undergo No Change During Lifetime of Individual.

The finger print is a scientific method of identification. A movement is afoot in Michigan for a state-wide registration system under which every one would be finger-printed. It is also planned by the government to establish a central bureau of identification with a national registration. It is deduced that prints are more permanent than the body itself, as physiologists tell us that the tissues of the entire body change once in about seven years, but whorls, curves and lines of the papilla always are renewed in conformity with the lines of childhood.

After an attack of scarlet fever the cuticle peeled off of a child's fingers As an experiment prints were made. They were found to be just the same as those made before the sickness. A man chanced to burn his fingers. They were badly blistered. After the blisters broke and the outer layer of the skin came off he made finger-prints each day until the fingers were completely healed. The ridges grew gradually until they made the same sharp prints that they had made before the accident.

TERM FOR POLITICAL CUNNING

Italian Genius Gave Name to What Might Be Called Unscrupulous Statesmanship.

"Machiavellian" is a term for political cunning, duplicity or bad faith, because Niccolo Machiavelli, an Italian statesman and historian, held as one of his principles that any means, however lawless or unscrupulous, might be justifiably employed by a ruler in order to maintain a strong central government. He produced among other works a treatise on government called "The Prince," the principles of which have gained for him a notoriety as wide as the civilized world.

Briefly, Machiavelli's political doctrines maintained a justification of the means by the end. The ruler or prince was to retain and augment his power; and to do so he might be an adept at misleading his opponents and getting rid of them. The interests of the state, represented by the ruler, were held to be above all laws or virtues, and the despotism of the prince was to be maintained by cunning and unrestrained by morality.

All Aboard.

Some sailors went ashore and as a change thought they would like to go for a ride on horseback. They went to the nearest livery stable and the spokesman asked for the ostler.

Spokesman—We wants an 'orse.

Ostler—What kind of an 'orse?

Spokesman—We want a four-legged 'orse.

Ostler (annoyed)—Yes, I know that, but d'yer want a quiet 'orse or a spirity 'orse?

Spokesman—Oh, it don't matter about that, mate. Give us a pretty long 'orse—there's eight of us and we're all goin' aboard.

Canada Offers "Last Chance" for Virgin Farms

THINK of what you could produce on a farm of virgin fertility, without the burden of high-acreage cost. Think of what 20-to-40 bushel wheat would mean to you under these conditions, and of dairying and stock raising on cheap pasture land. Land pays for itself in a few crops—no artificial fertilizer—no heavy investment. You have envied the farmer who got his start when land was cheap. Here's your chance, perhaps your last chance, for the same brand of prosperity.

Western Canada—Your Opportunity!

Western Canada is the farmer's land of opportunity. Thousands of settlers who started not many years ago with little or nothing, are today the owners of fine farms, with comfortable homes and barns, thoro'bred stock, dairy herds—all the marks of prosperity. Yet land is not dear—only $15 to $20 an acre for rich, virgin, prairie convenient to railways. Land is not dear in Western Canada—yet—because there is so much of it. But many settlers are expected in 1923, and now is your opportunity, before the best farms are taken. Get started. Taxes are reduced, not raised, on land brought under cultivation. On farm buildings, improvements, machinery, personal effects, automobile, etc., there is no tax at all. Canada wants workers—it wants its land farmed—and the farmers, through their municipal councils, have practical control of all local taxation.

Special Renter's Plan—Buy Out of Profits

To aid and encourage the honest worker with perhaps little capital, the Canadian Government has a "Renter's Plan", whereby one may work a new or improved farm—"Try it out" for several years if desired—and buy a farm of his own out of profits.

Thirty-Two Years to Pay

For the benefit of those wishing to buy land, a national non-profit sharing organization—the Canada Colonization Association—has been established, with head office at Winnipeg, and United States office at St. Paul. This Association offers selected land convenient to railways—much of it at $15 to $20 per acre—on very small cash payment; no further payment until third year; balance extended over thirty years, but purchaser may pay up and obtain title at any time, if desired. Interest six per cent.

Restored Lille Turns to Autos.

The city of Lille is again taking on an aspect of prosperity, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Vice Consul J. G. Finley, and is fast assuming the character of a thriving center of commercial and industrial activity worthy of its synonym as capital of the north of France. A considerable change has taken place since 1921, the consul states. Stores situated in the districts not damaged are well stocked and apparently enjoying a good business and electric signs, unknown in 1921, have appeared in various parts of the business centers which give much animation to the city at night. The number of automobiles, almost imperceptible in 1921, has increased in an exceptional degree.

Railway Seismographs.

An indication of the swift progress of the Japanese mind in practical science is afforded by Doctor Omori's report on the measurement of the vibrations of railway cars by means of seismographs. The primary purpose of the seismograph is to measure the oscillations of earthquakes. Japanese engineers use it for determining the proper balance of locomotives and the state of the permanent way of railways. Many practical advantages in the saving of fuel and the detection of faults in construction have thus resulted.

DR. C. H. GORDINIER PLEASES MANY AT COMMENCEMENT

Before an audience that completely filled the First Lutheran church, on Friday evening, Dr. C. H. Gordinier, principal of the Millersville S. N. S., presented an address to the New Oxford H. S. graduates that will probably be borne in mind by them thruout the years to come. Dr. Gordinier took for his subject, "A Prommissory Note", and in a forceful and enjoyable manner he impressed upon his hearers the need of service to the State and the reason why we should educate. The Doctor expressed his note in the following words:

"For value received in the form of an education, we, the New Oxford H. S. Class of 1923, promise to return a just equivalent to the State in the form of service." Dr. Gordinier then in a masterful way gave five reasons why we educate:

1 In order that our boys and girls may go out from the school with a sense of power which they would not possess had the not spent the same length of time in a high school.

2 We educate in order that they may learn to think more accurately and more quickly.

3 We educate in order that they may acquire a saner view point.

4 That they may make a better living and live better lives.

5 That they may be able to realize their limitations in the field of learning and so continue their studies either at home or at some collegiate institution.

In the second part of the note Dr. Gordinier emphasized the fact that service is always rendered by the superior to the inferior and that as a natural corollary the greater the degree of superiority the greater possibility for rendering service.

The program as outlined in last week's issue of the Item was splendidly carried out in full, every number being thoroly appreciated. Mrs. Henry J Smith, teacher of music, received many favorable comments with regard to the singing and she gives great credit to the teachers. Miss Esther Straley accompanist and the pupils for their earnest and untiring efforts in presenting the numbers so pleasingly with only three months work.

In the absence of Supt Shank, Prof Clarence P. Keefer presented the diplomas to the graduates.

BURIED WHISKEY IS STOLEN

Real buried treasure is missing from the back yard of a prominent Hanover bootlegger, who is out about $1,900 that he is said to have paid for two barrels of whiskey, alleged to have been brought there after the last robbery at the Foust distillery. The liquor was buried in the bootlegger's back yard, not over three blocks from Center Square News of the interment was noised about Then, one night last week, several men made a raid on the buried treasure, inserted a pump into the buried barrels, and pumped the liquor into cans that were carted away The bootlegger discovered his loss next day. Was he indignant? Well, he ran right to the local police and wanted to bring charges against certain men whom he named. The police said they would have no hand in the matter When news of the booze transaction reached ears of dry officials, Revenue Officer Hershey was sent to Hanover. Hershey inquired of Hanover police what they knew. The police told the story and the prohibition agent visited the bootlegger. The bootlegging was embarrassed by the visit. "Why I just did it as a joke," he is said to have told the agent The matter is not regarded as a joke, however, and it was learned dry officers are investigating the case
